LITTLE RUN OF KUTCH

Things to do – Safari, Ambala village to explore local handicrafts

A geographically distinctive landscape that was once a part of the Arabian Sea and got separated from the sea by geological forces, it became a vast, bland plain encrusted with salt that is swamped with water during the rains. Little Rann of Kutch a 4950 sq-km wildlife sanctuary is a birding paradise and only place in India where wild ass can be found. Arid grasslands, saline desert plains, marshes, rocks and thorn scrubs to lakes are found here.

One can also explore local handicraft by the women of the Kharapat Rabari community, a pastoral group in the village of Dasada do exquisite embroidery stitches with small mirrors and chain stitches for peacocks and other local motifs.
